Magic Strings

Magic Strings is an ensemble from Estonia consisting of ten talented young musicians. Magic Strings began in 2012 at the Music School of the Old Town School of Tallinn, where violin teacher Tereza Šmerling and her students started playing together and never stopped. What began as a classroom idea has since taken these young musicians to the Royal Albert Hall, Lincoln Center, and a basilica in Florence. Their repertoire includes classical, folk, film music, and contemporary works; sometimes all in the same concert, whether it is a small or grand performance. In recent years Magic Strings has expanded into studio recordings and music video productions, viewable on You Tube. The ensemble has toured across Europe, North America, Asia, and Australia.
